Data Format Overview

The IAIABC records contain data elements as presented on the Record Layouts, each of which has a defined data format and an assigned position in the record. Prior to population of the data element in the specific positions in the record, the position(s) where the data element will be placed is defined as spaces to indicate absence of data or no population of data in the field. The data format becomes applicable only when the data element is populated in the record.
